Youth Services Bureau Quarterly Report
Mr. Saccu was involved in seventy five plus truancy cases. Underlying causes are unstable home environment, transient residency issues and undetected mental health issues.

The state sent new truancy standards regarding attendance.

Mr. Saccu spoke with probation and DCF regarding truancy who requires heavy documentation and home visits.

DCF wants to hear from the schools if it is a parent who is the issue regarding truancy and not a defiant child. If it is a defiant child the court will be notified. If the probation court finds the parent to be a problem, they will also file with DCF.

Probation has offered to come and spend time with the educators to give tips on making the reporting of truancy more effective. Early identification at the elementary level to find underlying causes would allow the district to drive community resources to the area.

Residency issues have to be maintained on a regular basis and mandate a visit to the home. More kids are going to magnet schools and receiving special services which is costly.

The Juvenile Review Board compounds the opportunity to help the kids if there is a memorandum of agreement with other communities. This year there were forty one cases (50% Ansonia, 31% Derby and the balance being Seymour) involving breach of peace, assault, larceny and criminal trespass. The goal is to reduce school based arrests and reduce contact with juveniles and the juvenile court. Of the forty one cases, thirty eight have been diverted with one being handled in New Haven and the other two were rejected due to the parents being uncooperative and were sent back to court.

Derby and Ansonia high school administrators, and respective police departments had a meeting to discuss behaviors that rise to a level of police involvement and to further define the kinds of offenses. Drug incidents were also discussed.

Mr. Saccu feels Derby has an option with the Juvenile Review Board, Derby needs leverage with kids and families to handle drug cases. It doesn't hurt to agree with a police officer to write the summons in his view, giving the leverage to go to court if they don't cooperate.
Ansonia and Derby along with the high school administrators, Youth Service Bureaus and police went to a conference on school based arrests and reducing disproportionate minority contact with the court.

Programs available for the kids are drug and alcohol addiction prevention program, juvenile law program, life skills program, big screen production which is a prevention program about making good choices and decisions, internet safety, prom safety, Tim Rader who speaks on addiction on prescription drugs, career program, reality fair, true colors bus trips and the Mayor's award.

Grant money is continually being researched for gaps in services and encourages the board to look as well.
