Fri. 9.8 5 pm

You are invited to a dinner party
SEED TO SUPPER
Community dinner and a play

The Sandy & Hoodland Public Libraries and AntFarm will host “SEED-to-SUPPER, with STONE SOUP”, a harvest celebration for the Sandy Seed Library, the Sandy Library’s Teen Learning Garden, and the Mount Hood Farmers Market. Produce from the Mt. Hood Farmer’s Market will be contributed, and Executive Chef Daniel DeHay, from Mt Hood Meadows, will make a free community meal for the crowd. (Vegetarian option available)

This event will be held at the Mt. Hood Farmer’s Market, 38600 Proctor Blvd, Sandy, OR 97055, on September 8th.

5:00pm
Meet & Greet, with homemade lemonade, kicks off the event
5:30 pm
Watch a family friendly play as teens act out the folktale STONE SOUP.
6:00 pm
Chef DeHay will serve a community meal using fresh local food donated by the vendors from the Mt. Hood Farmers Market.

Thanks to a generous donation from the Oregon food bank this event is free to the public. Donations will be accepted for continuing support to the Sandy Seed Library and youth learning gardens.

Sponsored by the Friends of Sandy Library, the Library Coffee House is held on the first Friday of each month at 6 pm. This event features live music, refreshments and a craft for kids.

No Time 2 Lose Acoustic Band combines their individual talents and varied musical interests into one unit of energy and fun and a glimpse into the past. They enjoy performing Jazz and Torch Songs of Yesteryear along with Bluegrass, Blues & American Traditional with a little John Prine thrown in.

You could catch No Time 2 Lose at venues such as Gresham Earth Day, the Salmon Festival, Sandy Historical Society’s Annual Meeting, Farmers’ Markets, Troutdale’s First Friday Art walk, and the Gresham Little Theater Bluegrass Concert series along with a variety of other functions in the Pacific Northwest.

Sarah Kleeger and Andrew Still both grew up in Southern California surrounded by concrete. They met in college and started working on organic farms together in 2003, driven by a desire to reconnect with and help restore the natural world. Andrew saved his first seeds that year (an heirloom tomato), and in 2004 began to find mentors in the seed world. In 2006-07, they started the Seed Ambassadors Project, traveling, sharing, and collecting seeds in Northern and Eastern Europe. In 2009, they established Adaptive Seeds and moved to Open Oak Farm in Sweet Home, Oregon.

Adaptive Seeds stewards rare, diverse, and resilient seed varieties for ecologically-minded farmers, gardeners and seed savers. Most of our seed is adapted to the Pacific Northwest and other short season northern climates. We sell only public domain, open pollinated seed, as well as many diverse gene-pool mixes. All of our seed is grown by either us or a few regional friends who help with isolation needs. We are driven by and committed to the following seed priorities: rare and heritage varieties; Oregon and Northwest-bred; public domain, modern varieties; winter garden varieties; open pollinated varieties for commercial growers; diverse gene-pool mixes and land-races; early maturing and northern adapted varieties; highly nutritious staple foods. Our farm has been Certified Organic by Oregon Tilth since 2013.

Sarah and Andrew will share the stories of dedicated seed savers they have met in their travels, and the tactics they use in stewarding their varieties. Part story telling & part skill sharing; audience members can use many of these strategies in their own seed saving adventures.
Learn the basics on how to get started, why these foods are so important for your health, and how to incorporate them into your diet. We will focus on fermented vegetables (like kimchi, sauerkraut and pickles), kombucha, and other fizzy drinks.

Join Certified Holistic Nutritionist, Karen Morgan, and Fermenting and Health Enthusiast, Heidi McKay, as they guide you through the steps on how to make delicious and exciting fermented foods in your own home.

No registration needed for this event.
